of Lake Tahoe’s Washoe Indians” by Mathew Makley for further reading.

- Ways to get involved:
 - The best way to support the revitalization of Indigenous cultures is to advocate for the stewardship of Indigenous peoples lands that are not held by Indigenous peoples.
 - It is important to make sure that Indigenous peoples are brought to the table and that their voices are heard when consulted on various project. Mr. Fillmore has been advocating that when developing plans for various organizations that “consultation with the Washoe Tribe of NV and CA” is written right into the plan so that it is a requirement and not an afterthought.
 - Indigenous Peoples Day vs Columbus Day and the ongoing celebration of historical figures who were terrible people and often committed what we would describe today as genocide or war crimes.
 - Removal and Renaming of racist mascots, place names, caricatures, etc.
 - Review of Indian Boarding Schools and the tragic history that is not told outside of Indigenous Communities.
 - Advocate for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Woman (MMIW).
 - #LandBack – return of Indigenous Peoples lands and recent research which found that almost 80% of the biological diversity across the world can be found within lands still owned and stewarded by Indigenous Peoples.
 - Climate Change – not specifically an Indigenous issue but something that effects our traditions and cultures. Due to the ongoing drought we are unable to gather pinenuts/pinions this year.
 - Return of Salmon and other endemic species to their rightful homes. In California, this also means the removal of dams which completely stopped salmon from being able to spawn. In the Great Plains there is a (mostly) political agenda to keep bison from having expanded territory as ranchers are afraid they will carry diseases that kill cattle (which they can). In Nevada there was recently a pushback against registering the sage grouse as an endangered species as it would have stopped the development and extraction of resources within sage grouse habitat and expanded protections for them; however, the BLM (I believe) clear cut roughly 60 acres of pinenut forest to increase sage grouse habitat (although they clear cut the wrong 60 acres due to a gps malfunction).
